Greetings, Prince of Songkla University!

The 8th De La Salle – Model United Nations (DLS-MUN) is the largest international Model UN Conference in the Philippines, and gathers high school and college students to create solutions for global issues while simulating the United Nations setting and procedure. Now in its 8th year, DLS-MUN will be held for the second time online, catering to both local and international MUN organizations and universities from May 6-8, 2022, and will be accompanied by multiple pre-conference events such as panel discussions, case competitions, and outreach programs.

This year, the United Nations Philippines has officially supported our event, with the theme “Exploring the New Decade Through Digital Solutions and Social Action” the 8th DLS-MUN aspires to foster a multi-sectoral initiative by providing an academic discourse on the issues encountered by social, economic, educational and other significant institutions in society to carefully prepare for facing the new normal with equal opportunities for development.

We are searching for schools, universities, and MUN organizations that would help promote the 8th DLS-MUN with the option to send a delegation of at least five students; as such, we would like to invite your organization to be our partner for this flagship event.

Enclosed herewith is the Delegation Primer which contains the event details and packages, as well as an official letter of support from the United Nations Philippines. We are open to negotiate in order to achieve the best terms for both of our parties. Should you wish to modify a package or have any questions and concerns, feel free to contact me through this email.

Thank you and we look forward to hearing from you soon!

Sincerely,

8TH DE LA SALLE - MODEL UNITED NATIONS

UNITED NATIONS PHILIPPINES

Office of the Resident Coordinator

Date: 17 February 2022

Addressee:

Mr. Gio Almonte

Secretary General

The 8th De La Salle Model United Nations

Dear Mr. Almonte,

I commend you and your co-organizers of the De La Salle Model UN Conference (DLSMUN) for undertaking what is—even in pre-pandemic conditions—an immense feat of organizing and preparation, and today, an even greater task amid the continuing social restrictions of the pandemic, requiring creative use of technology and thoughtful anticipation of the participants' needs.

As I write this, the Philippines is looking forward to transitioning to a new normal, free from a kind of paralysis that has marked the last two years of COVID-19's reign in the country and in the rest of the world. We are all waiting to see what this new normal will look like and how reliable it will be. We are certain that it will not be free of problems, indeed, will likewise come with challenges as unique and unknown as this period in our history.

In 2015, the UN marked its 70th year anniversary with the promise of a stronger UN for a better world. Few occasions merit this assurance as this present time, this year, when the world is peering out cautiously from under the veil of the pandemic to see what awaits us, what the future might be like in our changed society.

Model UN Conferences are a good reminder of a shared aspiration and undertaking among the community of nations to collectively look ahead, address hindrances to our shared future, and see how we can shape it for the good of all.

The theme of the Eighth Edition of the DLSMUN is appropriate to this time: "Exploring the New Decade Through Digital Solutions and Action."

Unexpectedly, COVID-19 came with a gift: it showed us how, through the use of technology, we can carry on learning, working, and relating with one another, without the physical interaction that made these things possible in the past. The restrictions imposed by COVID-19 forced us to rethink and innovate our processes and systems in ways that were unthinkable just two years ago.

At the same time, however, the negative impact of COVID-19 has been unprecedented. Poverty and inequities have risen to a degree known only during the last world war. Children are suffering a learning deficit from long-term closure of schools that will take years to overcome. Young people are anxious about their future, and mental health issues are on the rise. Human rights are being beaten back on several fronts on the pretext of keeping infections at bay.

Office of the Resident Coordinator

Now, more than ever, we need young people and the tools that they are so adept at, to take a seat at the table and help shape an agenda that will transform our world to the same extent that COVID-19 has changed us. Build this agenda on the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), which remains the world's best roadmap for achieving an inclusive, sustainable, equal world where no one is left behind.

Keep the SDGs in front of you always, as you follow and improve upon a model for solving and anticipating challenges together and bravely building a society in the aftermath of a disease that we have survived and triumphed over.

I wish you many days of meaningful interactions in your Model UN Conference.

Yours sincerely,

DocuSigned by:
